Forever float that standard sheet!

Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

Capture of Snorkel.

Gen. Wool announces the capture of Suffolk, Va., which is twenty miles south-west of Norfolk. Communication with Burnside, in this direction, will soon be had. The Petersburg and Norfolk, the Seaboard and Roanoke railroads, and a branch of the Dismal Swamp Canal unite at this point.

The Battles on the Peninsula.

When the battle of Williamsburg was first reported, it was considered a victory, without much sacrifice, although the action was not thought to be a very severe one. It has been growing since, in successive reports, not to our advantage. Governor Sprague now says, that we lost, 2,000 in killed, wounded and missing. The rebels claim to have 600 prisoners and twelve cannon. The same remark is also true of West Point, where the action was more severe than was at first telegraphed. Five hundred of our men were taken prisoners, and Gen. Franklin was only saved from defeat by the gunboats. The Richmond Dispatch admits a loss of 1,000 killed and wounded at West Point. These were important successes to our arms, but obstinately contested by the rebels, who had greatly the advantage of position.

The Punishment of Rebels.

There are doubtless difficulties in the way of the passage of a confiscation law by congress. But, we believe the chief obstacle is the want of will on the part of members of congress. Some take counsel of their fears, while others naturally hanker after the rebels and do not want to see them hurt. Take a natural born aristocrat, and he will sympathize with slave holders, tho' the objects of his compassion and tenderness have slayed thousands of Union soldiers. There is something cutting and grand in his eyes, in the human being, who lives upon the labor of serfs—something baronial, which attracts the robber nature in his own soul. Great men, those slave holding rebels, in the estimation of a Union aristocrat—he has an affinity for him, which will exhibit itself when opportunity occurs. There are others who are servile, and naturally look up to and toady the lords of the lash. While there is a third class composed of politicians who are utterly degraded, and care nothing for country, if they can hope to divide "the spoils of office," once in four years. We believe these three classes exist in the north, and that they have their representatives in congress. They all unite in endeavoring to screen the rebel slaveholders from punishment; and with them are found timid men, who have proclaimed their high veneration for just and patriotic principles, many times, but now are too cowardly to act up to the teachings of their own philosophy.

It is possible that the efforts of such men will prevent the passage of a proper and righteous confiscation law for the punishment of the wealthy rebels, who have involved the country in its present difficulty, entailing enormous suffering, loss of life, and great expenditures of money, to be gathered from the toil of the people—confiscated in the shape of taxes from the earnings of northern farmers, mechanics and laborers. If this congress neglects its duty in this respect, there will be no punishment for the rebels, at all. It is clear we will not hang all of them, or any considerable number; the principal leaders will leave the country; the mass of poor men who make up a large part of the southern army will be pardoned, while the wealthy planters and merchants, if there shall be no confiscation bill passed, will also go without punishment. Such appears to be the present prospect, in consequence of the disagreement in congress on this subject. Should this be the result, a great wrong will have been committed, which cannot be rectified in the future. Now is the time to provide by fines and confiscations for the punishment of those traitors who, on account of their number, will not receive the really well merited dose of death. We reiterate—if there is to be no confiscation law, there will be no punishment of the rebels. Upon this congress rests the responsibility.

Blockade of New Orleans.—The efficiency of the blockade maintained at New Orleans the past year is pretty well established by the summary of the commerce of that city for the twelve months preceding the 1st of March, 1862.

The New Orleans Price Current puts down the exports of cotton from New Orleans for the year ending March 1st, at 11,000 bales, against 1,500,000 bales the previous year. The exports from all the southern ports have been only 13,000 bales, against 2,000,000 the previous year. Exports of tobacco from New Orleans nothing, against 17,000 hogsheads the year before.

The imports show a like falling off. Specie, nothing, against $12,000,000 the previous year; coffee, 500 bags against 250,000; salt, nothing, against 500,000 sacks.

Last Night's Report.

—Chicago, May 14.

Special to the Tribune.—A Cairo dispatch from Fort Wright at noon, yesterday says: A rebel tug, this morning, rounded the point to reconnoitre. Everything seems to indicate renewed activity on both sides, and we are expecting an attack momentarily. A deserter came on board the flag boat Benton, yesterday, and states that the rebel ram in the engagement on Saturday was not sunk as reported, but was terribly shattered. Our gunners undoubtedly fired most of their shots above water line. They struck where the ram was heavily plated. Exposed naval men are the opinion that had the same number of shots been fired at the water line or below, this would have sent every rebel craft to the bottom. The deserter reported that the rebel fleet lay off the fort, busily engaged in repairing damages, promising faithfully to return in exactly 48 hours.

From Pittsburg it is not expected that an attack would be made on the enemy's position for several days. Seize guns have not been placed in position. Gen. Halleck is still advancing cautiously, carefully for the advance. All his movements are predicated on the supposition that the enemy is in large force at Corinth, and that he intends making a stand. Grand Junction is being fortified by Beauregard, with the evident intention of falling back there, if beaten at Corinth. The number of the enemy's troops is estimated, at Halleck's headquarters, from 120,000 to 170,000.

Memphis papers of the 11th are received. A dispatch from Natchez states that the federal fleet had returned to New Orleans. The Appeal, commenting upon the growing disposition on the part of the citizens refusing confederate notes, characterizes the parties as traitors. The same journal says: The only condition upon which the south would accept peace is the recognition of the independence, not only of the cotton states, but of every border state, whose people desire an alliance with the confederacy. The following dispatches are taken from the Appeal: The provost marshal of Memphis has ordered the arrest of all persons refusing to take confederate money in payment for goods.

The Appeal of the 11th has had certain intelligence that Halleck's army has lost over 4,000 men by desertion, the country between the Tennessee river and Kentucky being full of them. The whole of the 40th Ohio deserted, and disbanded, after the battle of the 7th. Numbers of Kentuckians and Missourians followed their example, in consequence of disaffection produced by the late anti-slavery movements in congress.

The report was brought from Little Rock that Gen. Curtis' division of the federal army have commenced their march upon the capital of Arkansas. Gen. Steele is marching upon the same point. The following official dispatches are published: On 8th Ark., May 10. The enemy are reported to have been at Augusta, Glasson county, and took possession of all the cotton in the neighborhood. They are reported in considerable force at Jacksonport and Batesville. Their destination is unknown. Reported eight or ten thousand strong. Seven hundred bales of cotton were burned here, to-day.

Corinth, May 10. Since the thrilling thrashing administered to Pope's command, yesterday, by Price and Van Dorn, we have no further demonstrations. Matters are accordingly quiet this morning.

The following characteristic message from Jeff. Thompson is published: Fort Wright, May 10. We Missourians concluded to celebrate, to-day, the anniversary of the Camp Jackson massacre. We have shown the enemy that we still own the Mississippi and can run blockades whenever we choose. We gave them a few bullets this morning to show them our power; after a handsome scrimmage of 30 minutes, we backed down the river, with two killed and eight slightly wounded. Our officers are all safe, and our gunboats uninjured. All from Commodore down to powder boy behaved like soldiers.

The Appeal publishes this dispatch without comment. New York, May 14. Advice from Nassau, states that the Nashville had succeeded in getting into Charleston.

It is stated that the President has withdrawn the name of Lathrop for collector of New Orleans.

Fort Monroe, May 14. To Hon. E. M. Stanton: We have Suffolk. It was taken last evening by Major Dodge. All is quiet. Gen. McClellan's troops are at Cumberland. [Signed] JOHN E. WOOL, Major General.

St. Louis, May 14. The following is a dispatch to headquarters: Col. Daniels, with a portion of the 1st Wisconsin cavalry, attacked a rebel force, occupied by four companies, commanded by Col. Phelan, on the 10th inst., at or near Bloomfield. The rebels fled and scattered through the swamps, leaving one dead on the field.

The Union troops captured eleven prisoners, the horses of Col. Phelan and those of two of his lieutenants, a quantity of oxen, camp equipage, arms and ammunition; also, Col. Phelan's military chest, with all his books and papers. Col. Daniels is in pursuit, and picking up the rebels hourly.

The enemy are impressing every able-bodied man and sweeping off all the horses, cattle and supplies. The people were found in a state of terror perfectly indescribable.

The Democrat has received the following special this evening: Batesville, Ark., May 10. A flat boat capsized last night in twelve feet of water while crossing the White river, having on board some twenty men and two officers belonging to the 3d Illinois cavalry, a loaded wagon, one six mule team, and several horses. Capt. McClellan and five of the men were carried down and drowned. Adjutant Cowan and six others paddled ashore in a box, and three men were picked up a mile below on a tent.

The flatboat soon after righted with three men on top. The balance of the men swam ashore.

The Republican's correspondent sends the following special from below Commodore Foote's fleet, May 12. By scouts sent out, and by despatches incoming, the report of the capture of the rebel gunboats is not confirmed. All their boats in the fight, with the exception of the lost one, lay before Fort Wright, and the sound of repairing is continually heard.

The rebels declare they never will give it, but soon return for another bout. The truth is, our own side was pretty badly worsted.

Fort Monroe, May 14. To Hon. E. M. Stanton: We have Suffolk. It was taken last evening by Major Dodge. All is quiet. Gen. McClellan's troops are at Cumberland. [Signed] JOHN E. WOOL, Major General.

St. Louis, May 14. The following is a dispatch to headquarters: Col. Daniels, with a portion of the 1st Wisconsin cavalry, attacked a rebel force, occupied by four companies, commanded by Col. Phelan, on the 10th inst., at or near Bloomfield. The rebels fled and scattered through the swamps, leaving one dead on the field.

The Union troops captured eleven prisoners, the horses of Col. Phelan and those of two of his lieutenants, a quantity of oxen, camp equipage, arms and ammunition; also, Col. Phelan's military chest, with all his books and papers. Col. Daniels is in pursuit, and picking up the rebels hourly.

The enemy are impressing every able-bodied man and sweeping off all the horses, cattle and supplies. The people were found in a state of terror perfectly indescribable.

The Democrat has received the following special this evening: Batesville, Ark., May 10. A flat boat capsized last night in twelve feet of water while crossing the White river, having on board some twenty men and two officers belonging to the 3d Illinois cavalry, a loaded wagon, one six mule team, and several horses. Capt. McClellan and five of the men were carried down and drowned. Adjutant Cowan and six others paddled ashore in a box, and three men were picked up a mile below on a tent.

The flatboat soon after righted with three men on top. The balance of the men swam ashore.

The Republican's correspondent sends the following special from below Commodore

Cephalic Pills
CURE
Nervous Headache
All kinds of Headache.

By the use of these pills the periodic attacks of Nervous or Sick Headache may be prevented; and if taken at the commencement of an attack immediate relief from pain and sickness will be obtained.

They seldom fail in removing Nausea and Headache to which females are so subject.

They act gently upon the bowels, removing Constipation.

For Literary Men, Students, delicate females, and all persons of sedentary habits, they are valuable as a Laxative, increasing the appetite, giving tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and restoring the natural elasticity and strength of the whole system.

The ORPHALIC PILLS are the result of long investigation and carefully conducted experiments, having been in use many years, during which time they have prevented and relieved a vast amount of pain and suffering from headache, whether originating in the nervous system or from a deranged state of the stomach.

They are entirely vegetable in their composition, and may be taken at all times with perfect safety without making any change of diet, and the absence of disagreeable taste renders it easy to administer the children.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS!

The genuine has five signatures of Henry C. Spalding on each box.

Sold by Druggists and all other dealers in Medicines.
